Becoming a Family Place

Staff from the Teton County Library (TCL) will share the Family Place Library model, which aims to transform libraries into community centers for literacy, early childhood development, parent education, and more. Learn how TCL enhanced their existing efforts to become the first Family Place Library in Wyoming.

Mary Flaminio

LibAnswers and LibGuides

These tools can improve the library user experience, extend access when staff are scarce, provide information about your patrons and library, and target and deliver training. We'll discuss what we've learned at Laramie County Community College and ask you to share your experiences and creative uses.

Paula Badgett has been a reference and instruction librarian in Wyoming for over 15 years, working three years at UW and the past 12 at LCCC in Cheyenne, where her current title is User Services Librarian. In addition to using LibGuides for teaching, she is the library's LibAnswers administrator and uses the LibWizard product to conduct user surveys. She enjoys working with statistics to assess services and the information she gets from these Springshare products helps to target areas for improvement.

Makerspaces

We'll explore the potential of makerspaces and STEAM labs to foster experimentation, invention, creation, and exploration. Learn about the role of libraries in the Maker Movement and see successful makerspaces at work.

Put Leadership in Action

As disagreements about budgets threaten our work lives, we need to effectively advocate for the services we offer, the funding we need, and our unique suitability for the work. Learn how to leverage your leadership position to spotlight our programs.

Hilda Weisburg; sponsored by School Interest Group

Silver Tsunami

How can libraries meet the challenge of serving an aging and diverse demographic? We will cover the needs of older adults, report the findings of a nationwide study of older adult services, and share ways to create partnerships and services to those in their third act.

Cynthia Hughes is a Metadata Librarian at the University of Wyoming and a member of the Association for Rural and Small Libraries where she serves on the Marketing & Membership Committee. Her first job out of library school was helping a volunteer library make the transition to a public library in Beecher, IL. Four years ago, she moved to Laramie from a college library in North Carolina.

The Big Impact of Small Changes

Change doesn't have to be big to have an impact. Learn about small changes made in libraries across Wyoming that resulted in a big impact for the library and its patrons, followed by brainstorming small changes you can make in your own library.

Jason Grubb is the Director of the Sweetwater County Library System, a position he has held for the past five years. Born and raised in Green River, the Sweetwater County Library System has always been an important part of his life. Jason enjoys spending time with his wife and four children and traveling to the Oregon coast, a place he frequently visits.

Customer Service in the Library? Really?

Yes! Our customers (patrons) are our bread and butter! We'll examine customer service with respect to both diversity and generations in public and school library settings. The presenters will share ideas and then we'll have a round-table discussion with all types of libraries.

Richard Landreth, Anna Street

Wyoming's Opioid Crisis: A Hard Pill to Swallow and How Libraries Can Be a Remedy

Learn about the opioid crisis in a Wyoming context and how libraries can be more aware and supportive of prevention efforts. Panelists will discuss the truths, stigmas, and cultural perceptions of opioid addiction, as well as recent reports and local experiences.

Cassandra Crumpton, Dr. Lauren Gilbert

You, Yes You, Can Code in Your Library

Integrate simple coding programs into makerspaces and library programming. Librarians at all skill levels can introduce and expand the coding and programming skills of their students and patrons.

What Staff Wish the Library Director Knew and the Library Director Wishes Staff Knew: A Survey

Everyone has a role to play in their library. Positive work environments rely on knowing and appreciating each other's roles, but there is often a disconnect between library staff and the library director. Hear the results of the presenter's statewide survey and learn how to maintain a great work environment through understanding.

Beyond Fake News

In a world deluged with information, people are struggling to evaluate information sources. We'll demonstrate activities to teach information evaluation and literacy that can be scaled for any age group.

Michelle Boule is a geek, author, and librarian at Sheridan College.

She can be found online at A Wandering Eyre (wanderingeyre.com) or on Twitter and Instagram as @wanderingeyre.

The Future of Accessing Census Bureau Data

The Census Bureau's goal is to provide the best mix of timeliness, relevancy, quality, and cost for our data and services. Based on user experience, we are developing new ways to provide these data, making them more accessible and easier to understand using intuitive tools.

Kimberly Davis

Libraries Enhancing Access for Rural Neighbors (LEARN)

Learn how you can help library patrons with reading disabilities, vision impairments, and more access your library through assistive technology (AT) toolkits and other technologies. The kits were created by the Wyoming State Library (WSL) and the Wyoming Assistive Technology Resources (WATR) last year or academic and county libraries.

Felicia Arce, M.Ed is an assistive technology (AT) program specialist for the Wyoming Institute for Disabilities. Felicia develops device demonstrations and trainings on AT and implements the Wyoming Accessible Educational Materials (AEM) Clearinghouse which includes coordination of AEM services for K-12 students, community members, and professionals.

Mount Vernon

You can use trip-based immersion research to enhance library programming! The presenter will share what she learned at the George Washington Teacher Institute at Mount Vernon in June, as well as opportunities to participate in similar immersive research activities.

Connie Hollin

Slap Them Together and Send Them Out

Learn to repair pages, secure bindings, tip in pages, and fix corners, and pick up tricks for lining up text blocks. We'll have a discussion on triage and restoration methods, and look at some tools that can be made inexpensively to make mending work easier in public and school libraries. Bring your questions and a book that needs help!

Mary J. Hipol has worked at the Uinta County Library for 20 years as a reference/technical service assistant. She recently graduated from the University of Wyoming with a Bachelor's in Psychology. Mary has been the book repair specialist for Uinta County for about 12 years. During this time she has taken numerous classes and workshops at the Marriot Library at the University of Utah Book Arts Program.

Supporting Youth Services in Libraries

Paige will share what she learned at the year-long National Forum on Transforming Teen Services Through Continuing Education sponsored by YALSA. Information includes teen services competencies, the paradigm shift in teen services, and what librarians can do to support the future of youth services.

Citizenship & Immigration Services

Through its partnership with the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), U.S. Citizenship & Immigration Services (USCIS) provides libraries with information, educational materials, and training resources on immigration and citizenship topics. The USCIS Denver Field Office wants to be your partner in providing these services.

Amber Vasak

Tales with Tails (TwT)

Casper College recently introduced a reading literacy program that helps young students gain literacy skills, provides service learning opportunities to college students, and helps socialize shelter animals in Natrona County. By reading to the animals, students gain confidence and experience while the animals become more adoptable.

Sarah Mailloux is a librarian at Casper College specializing in reference, instruction, and outreach. She is on a quest for a library cat.

Wyoming Women's Suffrage Celebration

Wyoming will celebrate 150 years of women's suffrage in 2019 and 2020! Learn how libraries can support the efforts of a group appointed by Governor Matt Mead to create and promote statewide events, as well as educational and promotional materials.

Chris Van Burgh is the Database Instruction Librarian at the Wyoming State Library. She was appointed to the Governor's Council for the Wyoming Women's Suffrage Celebration. Chris's career in Wyoming libraries includes Casper College, University of Wyoming, and the State Library.

Librarians as Rural Community Multicultural Change Agents

Rural communities often have limited diversity, but Wyoming librarians can be leaders in building multicultural and welcoming schools, colleges, universities, and communities for all people. Learn how to engage people in dialogues across differences and connect diverse cultures through education and literacy.

Dr. Emily Monago was selected as the first chief diversity officer at the University of Wyoming in July 2017. She is an administrator who has led efforts to create a diverse, welcoming and inclusive environment at Ohio's Bowling Green State University. She began working in multicultural affairs in 1999 at Bowling Green and was promoted to director for the Office of Multicultural Affairs in July 2010. In 2016, she was promoted to the interim administrator in charge of equity, diversity and inclusion programs, expanding her portfolio to also include the Ethnic Student Center, LGBTQ Resource Center, Multicultural Affairs, four TRIO programs, and Women's Center. She has taught courses in interpersonal communications and other subjects.

Author Luncheon with Nanci Turner Steveson

Nanci is the author of Swing Sideways, a 2018 Wyoming Indian Paintbrush Award nominee; Georgia Rules, a Bank Street College of Education Book of the Year with Outstanding Merit; and the upcoming Lizzie Flying Solo about a recently homeless girl who loves a pony she can't have. Nanci is blessed with Peter Pan Adventure Syndrome. When her children were grown, she packed her truck and trailer with her horse, her dog, and a mysterious antique box given to her by a ghost, and moved 2,020 miles by herself to live in a historic meadow cabin in the shadow of the Tetons, where she writes books for middle grade kids, works as a stage manager for a professional theatre company in Jackson, and feeds her soul by visiting schools around the country to inspire and teach kids.
